Types of Speech Context

Introductory Message

For the Facilitator:

Welcome to the Oral Communication Self-Learning Module on Types of Speech Context.

This Self-Learning Module was collaboratively designed, developed, and reviewed by educators from the Schools Division Office of Pasig City headed by its Officer-in-Charge Schools Division Superintendent, Ma. Evalou Concepcion A. Agustin, in partnership with the City Government of Pasig through its mayor, Honorable Victor Ma. Regis N. Sotto. The writers utilized the standards set by the K to 12 Curriculum using the Most Essential Learning Competencies (MELC) in developing this instructional resource.

This learning material hopes to engage the learners in guided and independent learning activities at their own pace and time. Further, this also aims to help learners acquire the needed 21st-century skills especially the 5 Cs, namely: Communication, Collaboration, Creativity, Critical Thinking, and Character while taking into consideration their needs and circumstances.

In addition to the material in the main text, you will also see this box in the body of the module:

Notes to the Teacher

This contains helpful tips or strategies that will help you in guiding the learners.

As a facilitator, you are expected to orient the learners on how to use this module. You also need to keep track of the learners' progress while allowing them to manage their learning. Moreover, you are expected to encourage and assist the learners as they do the tasks included in the module.

For the learner:

Welcome to the Oral Communication Self-Learning Module on Types of Speech Context.

The hand is one of the most symbolized parts of the human body. It is often used to depict skill, action, and purpose. Through our hands, we may learn, create, and accomplish. Hence, the hand in this learning resource signifies that you as a learner is capable and empowered to successfully achieve the relevant competencies and skills at your own pace and time. Your academic success lies in your own hands!

This module was designed to provide you with fun and meaningful opportunities for guided and independent learning at your own pace and time. You will be enabled to process the contents of the learning material while being an active learner.

This module has the following parts and corresponding icons:

Expectations - This points to the set of knowledge and skills that you will learn after completing the module.

Pretest - This measures your prior knowledge about the lesson at hand.

Recap - This part of the module provides a review of concepts and skills that you already know about a previous lesson.

Lesson - This section discusses the topic in the module.

Activities - This is a set of activities that you need to perform.

Wrap-Up - This section summarizes the concepts and application of the lesson.

Valuing - This part integrates a desirable moral value in the lesson.

Posttest - This measures how much you have learned from the entire module.

EXPECTATIONS

RECAP

You have learned in the previous lesson that communication may breakdown because of the different types of barriers: Language, Psychological, Physiological, Physical and Attitudinal. So to become an effective communicator, we must be familiarized with them and find ways to avoid them.

LESSON

Based from the different lessons about communication, you have seen that it always involves people to communicate with and how they react and relate to each other. Today we will discuss the first two types of Speech context together with its examples. Today we will discuss the first two types of Speech Context. The next two will be the next day.

Types of Speech Context

1. Intrapersonal

This refers to communication that centers on one person where the speaker acts both as the sender and the receiver of message. The prefix “intra” means within; so we can say that intrapersonal communication is communication within oneself. “The message is made up of your thoughts and feelings. The channel is your brain, which processes what you are thinking and feeling. There is feedback in the sense that as you talk to yourself, you discard certain ideas and replace them with others.” (Hybels & Weaver, 2012, p 16)

Examples:

- You spent the night thinking and analyzing why a student from the other class talked to you on the way home and you decided it probably meant nothing.

- You felt happy while thinking about how your teacher appreciated you for submitting your project before the due date and you reflected on why this was so.
- You do self-talk to calm yourself down in a stressful situation “ I can surpass this”

2. Interpersonal

This refers to communication between and among people and establishes personal relationship between and among them. Solomon and Theiss (2013) state that “the inter part of the word highlights how interpersonal communication connects people... when you engage in interpersonal communication, you and another person become linked together... The personal part means that your unique qualities as a person matter during interpersonal communication...”.If intrapersonal communication is communication within oneself, interpersonal on the other hand is communication with others.

Types of Interpersonal Context

1) Dyad Communication

This refers to communication that occurs between two people

Example:

- You offered feedback on the speech performance of your classmate.
- You provided comfort to a friend who was feeling down.

2) Small Group

This refers to communication that involves at least three but not more than twelve people engaging in a face-to-face interaction to achieve a desired goal. In this type of communication, all participants can freely share ideas in a loose and open discussion.

Example:

- You are participating in an organizational meeting which aims to address the concerns of your fellow students.

- You are having a discussion with your group mates on how to finish the assigned tasks.

Since much of your time is spent in some forms of a group whether a class, a friendship group, a peer group, a family, or any other organizations, how successfully you function in such situations will depend upon how much you know about group communication. Compare and contrast the following:

Small Group Communication	Definition	Number of Participants	Leader	Purpose
1. Panel discussion	The clearing house of ideas	4-5 well-informed persons and audience	Chairman or moderator	To get the audience and the participants awakened to all the implications of the questions discussed.
2. Symposium	A meeting where several speakers deliver short talks on the same topic or related topics	4 – 8 experts who present 15-20 min.	Moderator/c chairman	To share ideas
3. Lecture Forum	-a 50-60 minute speech presented by an expert and the subsequent discussion of the subject	One expert and audience	Expert	To inform and to instruct
4. Round Table Talk	-an informal kind of	Chairman & more than	Group leader	To express opinions about discussion where the members are seated around a round table or may face one another as they seated in a set pattern in a rectangular table.	three members		the topic or problem

5. Debate	5. a formal discussion of an issue in which two speakers or teams, each representing a side of an issue, try to convince the audience that their position on the issue is the better one.	8 or more members	Team captain or chairman Scribe Presenters Opposers	To convince the audience that their proposition is better

Guided Practice

1. When do you commonly use the Round Table Talk?

(Yes, during meetings like Faculty meeting, PTA meeting, or any organizational meetings)

2. Since debate is a competitive, how will the members of the team persuade the audience to agree with them?

(The team members should promote a full, honest, and accurate discussion of their proposition together with the sound reasoning and reliable evidences.)
